REALM OF CARING

Finding support and recommendations for cannabinoid therapy and pain can be difficult. But that is where the nonprofit Realm of Caring (RoC) may step in to help. Since 2013, trained RoC care specialists have helped with product selection and practical administration suggestions. In general, tested cannabis products are safe but responsible use and guidance, as well as oversight by a healthcare professional whenever possible, are always recommended. RoC is here to help start and facilitate those conversations along the way.

RoC provides a free cannabinoid therapy education hotline for anyone who seeks more information and guidance. RoC has helped more than 73,000 people worldwide with one-on-one support to find a product and routine that serves their needs. RoC gives each client the extended time they need, follow-ups, and on-going support that go beyond product knowledge (for example how to talk to your doctor and where to find researched-backed information for specific conditions).
